THE GOULD-HUNTINGTON PURCHASE

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

NEW YORK, March 15.—A Times' Washington dispatch commenting on the alleged Gould Huntington purchase of the China vessels and the franchises of the Pacific Mail agreeing to pay one million two hundred thousand dollars each says: That part of the transaction by which the China trade was transferred to the railroad companies cannot be reached by any action of congress or by the courts, for the reason that the transfer was made to the Oriental Steamship Company, and the railroad companies as such are not known. The arrangement however by which the two railroad companies agree to pay the Pacific Mail $110,000 per month for the privilege of fixing passenger and freight rates by the ocean route between New York and San Francisco can it is believed be reached by congress and it is the opinion of those familiar with the various acts of congress under which the Pacific railroad companies are chartered and subsidized that payment of the subsidy to the Pacific Mail by the Union and Central Pacific companies is illegal, because it is, as described in the preamble to the resolution passed by the senate directly prejudicial to public interests and contrary to the public policy that controlled congress in chartering the Union Pacific Railroad Company and in granting to both the railway companies large subsidies in money and lands. It is said that the Gould-Huntington combination, having secured through the Oriental and Occidental Company absolute control of the China trade, do not care for the contract between the Union and Central Pacific and Pacific Mail, and would not object to proceedings intended to declare that contract illegal.

The Times adds: The Gould Huntington party have secured most of the valuable franchises and property of the Pacific Mail by transfer of the San Francisco and China line, and they are not unwilling to be relieved of the payment of $110,000 per month to the steamship company, and it has been intimated that the senate resolution of inquiry was instigated by the Gould Huntington interest for this very purpose.

THE EXODUS INVESTIGATION.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Ex-Senator Burch of Louisiana, before the exodus committee to-day, said that the efforts last winter by democrats to pass a "chain-gang law," and the uncertainty of the status of colored people under democratic rule, prevented many from making the usual labor contract in January and February this year and the result is already observable in the large number of colored people who have moved from the planting districts into cities and towns on the banks of rivers so as to take advantage of opportunities for transportation to the west. He grouped the causes of the exodus under five heads, viz: Fear on the part of the colored people of class legislation against them by democratic legislators; fear of interference with their educational privileges; uncertainty of obtaining homes and insecurity in retaining them; interference with their religious and personal rights and fear of disfranchisement. He thought it not improbable that the protection of his people in all their rights would produce the effect on them that it has produced in the case of Irish, German and English immigrants that have found homes and educational advantages and civil and political rights in this country. He believed that in right and justice the experiment should be tried. It would, at least, stop the exodus of his race. There had been a great change in the political complexion of voters in some parishes within the last few years, as shown by election returns. He instanced Ouachita parish, where in 1876, 1200 to 1500 republican and 400 or 500 democratic votes were cast, while at the last election the leading democratic candidate polled 1796, and the republican candidate only 11 votes. This and similar changes he said were accomplished by democratic returning boards. From five to seven jurors were formerly elected in each parish as supervisors of elections. Subsequently the democrats passed a law authorizing Gov. Nichols to appoint five.

TEACHERS IN COUNCIL.

Results of the Meeting

Unable to get reports each day of the session a general summary of the work done at the Forest Grove Teachers' Institute is now presented. The interest of the meeting was maintained to the last. The teachers of Yamhill county turned out to the number of about thirty.

One excellent paper was that of W. D. Lyman on spelling reform, who recommended some radical changes but would be satisfied with those recommended by the American Philological Society. The presentation of the subject was with so much spirit and force that a committee, consisting of Prof. J. S. Marsh, W. D. Lyman and Rev. Wm. Roberts, were appointed to draft resolutions that should express the sense of the institute. The committee presented these resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we consider a radical change in English spelling extremely desirable; that while we recognize the need of speedy reform and the importance of popular discussion of the subject, yet we feel that true and permanent progress demands that all minor associations submit to the leadership of some central association whose members may be fitted by general culture and special linguistic acquirements to establish a new system on a firm and universal basis.

That we deem the movements of the Philological Association, under the control of such men as Whitney, Marsh and others, in the direction of phonetic spelling to be correct and judicious and we recommend the acceptance of them by our teachers and press.

That we urge the importance of action, both legislative and literary, which shall give the popular mind the apprehension of the necessity of a d[illegible] liberate, philosophical, scholarly and national change.

That we recommend the immediate adoption of the following spelling according to the resolution of the American Philological Association, viz: Giv, hav, liv, catalog, infinit, ar, tho, thru, gard, definit, wisht.

On Friday evening, Rev. G. J. Burchet, of McMinnville, delivered an excellent address, taking as his subject the "Religious Element in Education." The speaker did not think with Webster that the safety of the nation depends upon the education of the masses, but upon the right education. This right education besides a knowledge of books includes a careful moral training. The speaker said he was out of patience with those who would only educate the boy to shove a jack plane or forge a horse shoe.

Prof. W. N. Ferrin would familiarize young boys and girls with the elementary facts of popular science in schools. When a lad of nine years the speaker had under the guidance of his father, learned to trace the constellations and the facts gained at that early age had remained fixed in the mind.

The committee on resolutions in addition to those of a complementary nature, reported the following:

Resolved, That no certificate should be granted to any person who is in the habit of using intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

Resolved, That the grade of schools should correspond to the grade of certificate.

Resolved, That the common schools of Washington and Yamhill counties should be better supplied with the necessary apparatus both for teacher and pupil.

Resolved, That the duties of the county school superintendent should employ his whole time and that legislative action should provide remuneration accordingly.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate

WASHINGTON, March 15.

After [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] on wh[illegible] [illegible] the view [illegible] the [illegible] several [illegible] Davis [illegible] presented a memorial from Chicago [illegible] asking a [illegible] of the [illegible] on [illegible] and paper material [illegible] for not making the desirable change.

Johns[illegible], Williams, Beck and others presented [illegible].

Bayard from the judiciary committee reported favorably a bill prohibiting the arrest of electi[illegible] officers [illegible] days by a marshal, deputy [illegible] any offense against the United [illegible] election laws, but process may be served after the close of election day.

Edmunds said that he and others did not concur.

Thurman reported a substitute for the bill making rape in the District of Columbia a capital offense. It gives a jury power to fix the punishment [illegible] death or imprisonment.

Edmunds said that he did not concur.

Consideration was resumed of the star route bill. The preamble recited the deficiency caused by the postoffice department disregarding the law prohibiting an expenditure in excess of appropriation which deficiency unless supplied threatens to deprive the people of the necessary mail service to which they are entitled. The bill therefore enacts that $1,100,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary be appropriated to meet the expenses of inland mail transportation on star routes for the remainder of the current fiscal year. During the remainder of the year no further expediting of the service or increasing trips on any star route shall be made. The further sum of $100,000 is appropriated for placing new services according to law, provided that the postmaster general shall hereafter have power to expedite any contract there now existing or hereafter given to a rate of pay not exceeding 50 per centum upon the contract or original.

Wallace explained the bill and gave the views of the committee. The postmaster general on Dec 8th said that the deficiency was $1,700,000 and asks an appropriation of $2,000,000 to cover it. The sixth auditor says that $1,155,000 will cover it. These are very strange figures. They demonstrate that either the postoffice department did not know its own needs or that the sixth auditor of the treasury does not know what the service needs for its completion to the end of the year, for there is a difference of $565,000 between their estimates. The conclusion is forced upon us that they did not know their own wants or else had some other purpose to serve: increase or expedition of service and proposed to have enough money to do all the department saw fit to do during the year. It is our duty of course to take a charitable view of the subject and the committee simply call attention to the discrepancy in the figures. Senate bill appropriates $1,170,000, the amount shown to be sufficient by the sixth auditor. So that from every point senate bill is better than house bill. People want fast mails and contractors in good faith should not suffer by reason of wrong action by the government. It is better for us to wait until we put our hand on the wrong door and discover where corruption exists, if it does exist, and then punish the contractor or officer found guilty. We did not feel warranted in the absence of any proof of fraud or corrupt conduct in striking down these contracts. At the same time let the house continue its search for the thieves and if they find them, the senate committee on appropriation will be the first without distinction of party to punish the scoundrels whether in the department or out of it. When wrong is found, the senate, acting in its judicial capacity, will be ready to strike. I have no doubt. I have no defense of the postoffice department for these unreliable figures or for the attempt to expend more money than the law allowed, but the simple fact is that there is in this case a requirement that the service should go on at its present basis and that there is no ground in fact or law for the stopping of the service once warranted. I will be the first to aid in forfeiting any contracts fraudulently held, but we believe that the demands of the business require the service to be kept up, and in the absence of proof of corruption we make no charges but simply return amended bill and ask its passage.

Maxey supported the bill as amended but did not concur in the preamble. The postmaster general had acted under the law. If the law was a bad one it should be repealed. That was for congress to decide, but the postmaster general should not be accused of crime in exercising discretion vested in him. There had been much said about some of these routes, the Yuma route especially. He himself was probably more than any other man responsible for the increase on that route. He and other representatives of the country had urged the increase on the postmaster general. He had granted it and the result had fully justified his action, for that country was being settled up with remarkable rapidity. Congress was doing a good thing for the whole people in extending mail facilities and helping to build the country up.

Beck insisted that the preamble was justified by the facts. The postmaster general was required to furnish estimates for existing service and what he thought necessary for increase. He said that $500,000 was sufficient, and congress gave him every dollar that he asked. Eight days afterwards he called attention to the deficiency for the star service and asked for $2,000,000 more. Shortly after the sixth auditor said $1,150,000 was enough. These contradictory statements should have aroused suspicion at once. The department is required to make up a blue book giving full information of its action for the use of congress. For the first time on record this blue book has been divided into two parts, the second part, containing all the information regarding routes and contracts, being kept back until March or April for the purpose of withholding information which would have enabled congress to know what the department had been doing. Brady was obliged to omit that there was no other necessity for this than the failure of the proper bureaux to furnish information. The postmaster general had no right to spend so much of the appropriation during the first months of a year to make a deficiency inevitable in the last month. It was a plain violation of law. We had hanging over us an order from the department reducing the service on all star routes to one trip a week unless congress appropriated all the postmaster general asked for. That officer claimed that he had a right to stop the service entirely if he chose unless appropriations were made. In voluntarily putting himself under the necessity of crippling the service he was violating law. Congress would do injustice to the people if it did not insert in the very face of the bill an assertion that the deficiency is caused by violation of law.

Beck will resume his remarks to-morrow.

After executive session adjourned.

Several other bills were introduced.

The morning hour expired and this being the third Monday in the month the speaker recognized the gentlemen authorized by committees to move to suspend the rules.

The bill relative to the investment of the Pacific railway sinking fund was postponed four weeks on account of the illness of McLane.

Dunn from the public lands' committee moved to suspend the rules and consider the bill relating to public lands. The first section provides that when public lands have been entered upon and the government price paid therefor in full, no suit civil or criminal shall thereafter be had or maintained by or in the name of the United States for any trespass upon or for or on account of any material taken from said land, or on account of any alleged conspiracy in relation thereto, prior to the approval of this act.

Section 2—Provides that any persons who have heretofore, under any homestead laws, entered upon lands subject to such entry, or persons to whom rights have been attempted to be transferred by bona fide instruments in writing, may entitle themselves to said lands by paying $1.25 per acre, the amount heretofore paid the government on said lands shall be taken as part payment of said price, provided that this in no way interferes with the rights or claims of others who may have subsequently entered such lands under homestead laws.

Sec. 3—Provides that the price of lands now subject to entry which was raised to $2.50 per acre more than 20 years prior to the passage of this act by reason of the grant of alternate sections for railroad purposes shall be reduced to $1.25.

Sec. 4—This act shall not apply to any mineral lands and no person shall be prosecuted for or proceeded against on account of any trespass committed or material taken from any public land after the passage of this act shall have entitled him to the benefits thereof.

A motion to suspend the rules was seconded [illegible] to 3[illegible].

After debate of fifteen minutes in support of the bill and fifteen minutes in opposition the motion to suspend the rules and consider was defeated—yeas 1[illegible] 4, nays 80—[illegible] the necessary [illegible].

A number of executive communications were referred, among them a letter from the secretary of the treasury in response to a resolution calling for certain commercial statistics relating to [illegible] trade between the Atlantic and Pacific [illegible], which was referred to the committee on [illegible]. Adjourned.

Letter from Langell valley [illegible] been perishing in great numbers. Some have been fed pretty well, but being without shelter from the severity of the storms could not survive on half rations. Stock men of this and surrounding sections will lose heavily [illegible] this winter and of course the effect will be noticeable on us all, but more particularly on that class who depend wholly on the stock interests. This has been a very severe winter and we as yet have no indication of its releasing us from its icy embrace until it has crowded the spring. However the farmers have no serious apprehensions as to its conflicting with their interests directly, though it may continue so late as to delay them considerably in putting in their crops.

He held [illegible] defendant guilty on the ground that it was calculated to provoke a breach of peace. The second charge, that of threatening to kill any person who could plot against his life, the court held could not be considered a crime, as the circumstances in which the kill[illegible] would be justified were recited as part of the threat. Sentence was reserved till to-morrow.

Fight with Robbers

The 'City of Sydney' Fire

The fire on the steamer City of Sydney was extinguished at an early hour this morning. The damage is confined to the compartment in which the fire originated and will not, it is thought, exceed $10,000 on cargo. The ship is very little injured and can be made ready for sea in a day or two. A survey will be held to-day when definite conclusions will be reached. The fire is believed to have originated in a lot of oil skin clothing by spontaneous combustion. A survey of the steamer this afternoon shows that her departure will be delayed probably until Saturday.

Reported "Arrangement" Between Kalloch and the Citizens' Committee

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15.—A conference of great importance in its bearings upon the present condition of affairs in the city was held at the mayor's office this afternoon between Mayor Kalloch, representing the workingmen, and a number of prominent citizens, bankers, merchants, etc., on the part of the citizens' protective union. The conference lasted from one until a quarter to three o'clock and was very harmonious and satisfactory. The whole situation and the events of the last few weeks were reviewed and discussed. At present, various considerations combine to render it unadvisable to make the details public, but it may be stated that there is every reason to believe that within two or three days arrangements will be consummated ensuring a complete, harmonious and mutually honorable settlement of questions which have so long vexed this community and the restoration of good will, business confidence and activity and general prosperity.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Port Townsend Items.

PORT TOWNSEND, March 15.—The steamship Dakota arrived here this morning. The greater number of passengers were miners bound for the Skagit.

From reliable authority just received from the mines we learn that the depth of snow in and around Ruby creek is eight feet, which will probably prevent any work from being done before the first of June or later.

The steamer Duncan sailed for Portland last evening with one thousand barrels of lime from San Juan, 4500 gallons fish oil and other freight.

Weather delightful, warm days and cool nights.

BOOK NOTICES.

Hawthorne is the first American writer treated in the series known as "English Men of Letters," edited by John Morley. This sketch is written by Mr. James from a purely English standpoint for English readers. To most readers Hawthorne's peculiarity is well known. He is a writer who possesses a very marked idiosyncrasy. But he is not a great original writer. A strain of allegory runs through nearly all his works and a sombre or morbid state of mind is manifest in them all. His peculiarity is sameness and monotone; he never rises out of his melancholy into a sunny cheerfulness. Even his strokes of humor usually have the same cast of thought, tone and expression. There is dramatic power in some of his books, notably in "The Scarlet Letter" and "The House of Seven Gables," yet his tone is all the same from his Dimmesdale to his Goodman Brown. Mr. James rates Hawthorne as a novelist and story writer and calls the "Marble Faun" and "Septimius Felton" novels. No profounder error could be committed. Hawthorne was a romancer pure and simple. He wrote scarcely anything that could be called a novel, unless it be "The Blithedale Romance"—a singular misnomer. Even the passionate human agony which throbs in every page of "The Scarlet Letter" cannot bring it out of the weird domain of romance and in nearly all his stories the element of supernaturalism plays so strong a part that to remove it would be to take away life and soul. But all admirers of Hawthorne, and they are many, will read Mr. James' book with gratification. The style is [illegible] and strong and the work of the writer is inspired by a distinct con[illegible] of the purpose of his undertaking.

[illegible] FROM THE PUBLISHED WRITINGS OF ALFRED TENNYSON set to music by various [illegible]. Edited by C. W. [illegible]. With a portrait [illegible] original illustrations by Winslow Homer, C. S. Reinhart, A. Fredericks and Jessie [illegible]. New York, Harper & Brothers, publishers.

Even [illegible] a bard hoary with years and in the [illegible] of renown it must be a source of gratification to find his [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] not always the stateliest [illegible] of a master that most [illegible] the [illegible] frequently the carol is sweeter than the full and majestic strain. The works of the British laureate offer an [illegible] [illegible] composer's skill [illegible] [illegible] is that in themselves [illegible]. Without [illegible] or illustration [illegible] have easily become [illegible] songs of the world. It was by no means an inspiration [illegible] them one [illegible] and set them to [illegible]. In performing the long neglected task [illegible] necessary has been omitted to render the achievement as nearly perfect as possible. The composers are in keeping with the spirit of the lyrics, the etchings are superb, the binding is costly and elegant, and by permission the work has been dedicated to Queen Victoria. Tennyson is now far advanced in years. It is well to delight him, if possible, with this chef d'œuvre of the musical and typographical art and of his own art of courtly minstrelsy.

A HISTORY OF OUR TIMES. By Justin McCarthy. Published by Harper & Brothers, New York. For sale by A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco.

One of the most difficult of literary achieve[illegible] [illegible] to write [illegible] [illegible] history of our own times [illegible] But in the work [illegible] which we [illegible] the first volume [illegible] author has [illegible] succeeded admirably. The entire history [illegible] over the [illegible] from the accession of Victoria to the Berlin congress, and [illegible] volume will complete it. The manner of treatment is not so much statistical as philosophical and political. Much of the value of the book depends on its sagacious estimates of England's public men, [illegible] parties, social and street church [illegible] movements, declines of ministers, famine and commercial troubles. Lord Palmerston, Wellington, Gladstone, the eastern question and invasion of the Crimea—are among the subjects considered in this initial volume and upon which the erudite author has expended a [illegible] judgment and scholarly [illegible]. [illegible] the closing chapters of the present book are particularly interesting as treating of the literature of the reign of Victoria. Before she came to the throne Scott, Byron, Coleridge and Keats were dead. Wordsworth, Southey, Moore and Landor also had completed their literary work. Brewster, the experimental philosopher; Michael Faraday, the chemist and electrician; Sir John Herschel, whose eyes were among the stars and his soul in the blue ether; Richard Owens, the Cuvier of England, and Newton of natural history; Hugh Miller, the devotee and martyr of scientific inquiry—all contributed in rich measure to render Victoria's reign remarkable for literary genius. And still other names are to be added to the grand galaxy of intellectual supremacy. The figure of Thomas Carlyle stands out in bold relief. Stuart Mill, with gentle and timid demeanor, graced the public London platform. Harriet Martineau made famous her romantic home in the bosom of the Lake country, and both Mrs. Browning and Robert Browning gave their fame to the middle years of the present queen. Grote, Macaulay and Carlyle add their richness to the historical records of the time, and Tennyson and Browning give poetic lustre to the reign. Matthew Arnold gave his thoughtful and exquisite verse, and the "Song of the Shirt" allied Thomas Hood to the period under consideration. In fiction as well as in poetry, great names have struggled for pre-eminence and made reputations which no one country could monopolize. Dickens, Thackeray, Charlotte Bronte, Lord Lytton and Disraeli have dealt with the serious, sympathetic and passionate sides of life, while the rollicking, rattling, love making and fighting romances of Charles Lever captivated the age and set every one in love with Charles O'Malley and the roistering adventures of the Light Dragoons. Mr. James and his chivalric adventures rivaled Walter Scott for the day, although his once famous solitary horseman has now ridden to actual solitude and the shades of forgetfulness are fast gathering over his cavalier form. Punch has given us some of the brightest of Douglas Jerrold's writings, and the pencils of Doyle, Leech and Tenniel have made their country proud of their art. This brief resume shows the brightness of Victoria's reign and will serve to illustrate the shining lights with which this capable historian has to deal, whose effulgence graces his every page, reflecting alike a luster upon the subjects and the hand that describes them.

The miners of Jackass creek will have a larger supply of water and a better opportunity to work their claims this season than they have had for many years past.

Gin Lin made another clean up the other day, from which he realized over $800. This was the result of a two weeks run in only fair ground. Lin has moved the pipe to another portion of his claim, where better pay exists.

From Leland: A tree stump eighteen feet high and twenty six inches in diameter fell on E. G. Browning at Wolf creek last Saturday while he was at work in his mining claim, striking his head and left shoulder and knocking him down with the log upon him. His head and face are terribly bruised, the scalp being torn in places. He is suffering a great deal with his back and breast, but if not injured internally he will probably recover.

At a meeting of citizens of The Dalles to consider the subject of establishing an academy [illegible] that city the sentiment was [illegible] [illegible] favorable to the proposition. It seems certain that such a school will be established.

The Monumental mill is running on full time and crushing very rich ore. Two bricks, No. 1[illegible] and 14, that came out about two weeks ago were stamped $1,3[illegible] [illegible]. No breakdowns in the mill for [illegible] weeks.

The local railroad from Walla Walla to Wallula is being thoroughly overhauled. New ties are taking the place of the old ones. The work will be completed in about ten or twelve days from the Touchet to Wallula, and several gangs of men are now at work putting in new ties. It is the intention to place the whole line from Walla Walla to the river in first rate repair within the next three months.

SUPREME COURT

SALEM, March 15, 1880.

Court convened at 11 A. M., pursuant to adjournment. Present all the justices.

C. M. Rohr, resp., vs. S. Isaacs, app.; appeal from Multnomah county. The judgment of the court below is affirmed with costs. Opinion by Kelly, C. J.

Syllabus—1. The plaintiff in an action brought in the justice's court made an oral reply to a counter claim set up by the defendant in his answer, but such oral reply was not entered by the justice in his docket. The justice proceeded to try the case and after hearing the testimony of the parties disallowed the greater portion of the counter claim, whereupon the defendant appealed to the circuit court. Held that it was not error in the circuit court to allow a reply to be filed in the circuit court so as to present for trial the same issue which was in fact tried in the justice's court.

2. The submission of particular questions of fact to be answered by the jury in addition to their general verdict is a matter of discretion with the court, and the submission may be withdrawn by the court at any time before the jury have found a special verdict on the particular questions submitted to them.

Syllabus—As a general rule it is a matter resting in the discretion of the judge to receive at any convenient stage of the trial any evidence which counsel undertakes to produce and shows will be rendered material by other evidence, and if not subsequently connected with the issue to be laid out of the case, but the exercise of such discretion is not reviewable.

Evidence tending to show that respondent was poor and in indigent circumstances at the time when she entered into the service of appellant was not admissible, for the reason that the answer contains no such averment as a ground of defence.

Where service has been performed for a relative, or by a person who is a pauper or in indigent circumstances, the law will not imply a promise to pay for such service, but an express hiring must be proved in order to support a claim for wages.

If respondent while a minor originally entered into the service of the appellant as a member of his family with the understanding that she was not to be paid for such service she had a right at any time after arriving at lawful age to rescind such agreement and enter into another with appellant by which she should be paid whatever her services were reasonably worth and a right to recover the reasonable value of any services thereafter rendered.

TUESDAY MORNING MARCH 16 1880

NOW THEY SEE IT

As a rule the most strenuous supporters of the fallacies of a protective tariff are the editors of the small newspapers of the country. Most of them are probably persuaded to it by the arguments of protected manufacturers. Throughout the eastern and middle states nearly every town has a factory of one kind or another and the weekly journal whose range of observation is not wide is easily convinced by the interested owner of the factory that protection is the great life giving principle of industry and prosperity. This view is also impressed on the congressman of the district, and though sometimes he may be a man of sufficient culture and breadth of understanding to know better yet his intelligence is readily sacrificed to his desire of re election. All "protected" interests form an alliance in congress to uphold their common monopoly, and it is extremely hard to break the line.

But "protection" now pinches in a way that brings the small newspapers to their senses. Under the benign policy of affording protection to manufacturers against proper competition the price of print paper has been run up recently nearly one hundred per cent and the paper makers protected on one side by a combination between themselves and on the other by prohibitory duties are working their own sweet will upon the newspapers of the country. They are "squeezing" the weaker newspapers and the country press generally at a fearful rate, and the way they "squeal" is not only edifying in itself, but is worth more as a free trade argument than all the dreary columns they have printed for years in favor of that scheme of robbery known as "protection." They just now begin to see the point as they never saw it before. Other classes have been robbed in the same way under pretense of protection through long years, but the complaint was unheeded by the wisdom of the country press, and the answer to the intelligent newspaper which pointed out these things as the result of "protection" invariably was that it had been bought with British gold.

Publishers' associations of various states, representing the country press, have recently been holding meetings to memorialize congress on the situation; and the publishers and editors of several thousand country papers have been loading the mails with letters to the representatives of their respective districts entreating them to allow free trade in paper and grant needed relief. They insist also that the duty on type and type metal be abolished. Among the manifestoes issued on the subject is one by the president of the publishers' association of Wisconsin, which presents the subject in an extremely warm, excited, and original manner. It says the "protected" paper makers and type founders "stand in the entrance of the editorial sanctum and take the money that comes in on subscriptions, and allow the publisher only the cordwood and farm produce." Good! Then "protection" isn't the fine thing which it has been represented. Again: "By the protection your honorable body affords them in the way of tariff, they grapple the throat of every newspaper in America and say 'Pay!' while the newspaper publisher can only return his chips to the dealer and say 'O sell!'" This is not a model petition to congress, but it is valuable as expressive of the excitement of a class who never before have been able to see the beauties of "protection." The memorial continues: "Every article used by a newspaper man, except second hand ulster overcoats and corn is protected by a tariff that makes a cold chill run up his spine. Everything that goes into the construction of rag paper, except the wood, sweat and water, has a tariff on it. The soda, the [illegible] and blue [illegible] whatever is used to deodorize under-[illegible] and cast off drawers, so that they will be good in a newspaper, has a corn on it in the shape of a tariff, so that the paper manufacturing three-card-monte chaps have an excuse to bleed newspapers to the last drop. The newspapers are desperate and feel that they have been ravished about enough by the different tribes of beneficiaries of the government." Good doctrine in this [illegible] method of pleading for free trade, and it is certainly a cause of gratification that a class who never before could see the iniquities of a "protective" tariff now have the matter brought home to them in so convincing a way. No cold argument for free trade, however powerful, could be half so effective.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE AND ISTHMIAN QUESTION

So much has been said recently about assertion by our government of the Monroe doctrine in connection with the canal action of the isthmian canal that several persons have addressed inquiries to this journal requesting specific information as to what the Monroe doctrine is. It is quite a simple matter. The "doctrine" was first declared by President Monroe in his message to congress on the 2d December 1823. A dispute had arisen with England respecting our northern boundaries. Mr. Monroe said "In the discussions to which this interest has given rise and in the arrangements in which they may terminate, the occasion has been judged proper for asserting as a principle in which the rights and interests of the United States are involved, that the American continents by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintained, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects for future colonization by any European power." He proceeded then to apply this principle to the policy of recognizing the independence of the American colonies of Spain, then in rebellion, saying:

"In the wars of the European powers in matters relating to themselves, we have never taken any part, nor does it comport with our policy so to do. It is only when our rights are invaded or seriously menaced, that we resent injuries, or make preparations for our defense. With the movements in this hemisphere we are of necessity more immediately connected, and by causes which must be obvious to all enlightened and impartial observers. The political system of the allied powers is essentially different in this respect from that of America. This difference proceeds from that which exists in their respective governments. And to the defense of our own, which has been achieved by the loss of so much blood and treasure and matured by the wisdom of our most enlightened citizens, and under which we have enjoyed an unexampled felicity, this whole nation is devoted. We owe it, therefore, to candor and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those powers to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence, and maintained it, and whose independence we have in great consideration and on just principles acknowledged, we could not view any interposition, for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destinies by any European power in any other light than as a manifestation of very unfriendly disposition toward the United States. In the war between these new governments and Spain we declared our neutrality at time of their recognition and to this we have adhered and we will continue to adhere, provided no change shall occur which in the judgment of the competent authorities of this government, shall make a corresponding change on the part of the United States indispensable to their security."

From these extracts we get the general idea of the Monroe doctrine. It is a declaration against acquisition by any European power of additional foothold on the two continents of America or influence in their affairs. When his message was delivered Napoleon had been dead two years and the monarchical governments of Europe were arranging things to suit themselves. The representatives of the "holy alliance" were actively bestirring themselves in behalf of the divine right of kings, and the right of interfering on this continent to restore to Spain her revolted American colonies was canvassed. France was supporting the claims of the dynasty of Spain, against the demands of the people of that country for constitutional government. At this time and under these circumstances our government came out with a declaration that the great political and commercial interests which hang upon the destinies of America could not be canvassed and adjusted in Europe without the co-operation or knowledge of the United States. This being decided by President Monroe the words of his message above quoted were written by John Quincy Adams then secretary of state. The doctrine has since been approved by our statesmen and conventions of all parties. It is now applied to the isthmus canal question for the plain reason, apparent to every one that if this canal be built with European capital it will be an interest so vast that the European state whose citizens furnish the money will assume a protectorate over the canal and consequently over the territory through which it passes with the ports at both ends and this condition of affairs will inevitably lead both to discriminations against our commerce and to the assertion of European influence and control at a most important point on the American continent. Hence the message of President Hayes which asserts that the United States will not consent to the construction of the canal unless our own country have controlling power over it. It is necessary to do this to keep out of the hands of others the power to control against us the short water way between the opposite coasts of the United States as well as a short way through the continent and around the globe.

ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS

At the conference of republicans of Illinois consisting of a large number of representatives from every congressional district in the state, which was held at Chicago on the 25th February, there was free interchange of opinion as to presidential candidates. The most noticeable thing was a spirit of independence which indicates a manly freedom in Illinois from "boss" rule like that which controls Pennsylvania and New York against the wishes of the republican masses. The Grant machine did however set in to capture the conference, but failed. Many of the members took occasion to express their views as to the peril of making Grant the candidate. Washington Hesing representing the Illinois Staats Zeitung a journal which earnestly supported Grant both in 1868 and 1872 said that if Grant should be nominated there would be great danger in the states where the Germans are strong, including even Illinois. "No doubt" said he, "a majority of those who fix things—who are with the machine—are for Grant, but the people are not for him. You can find in every hamlet, in every village from three to ten republicans who will not vote for him. Figure up this result, and see if you can afford to jeopard the success of the republican party." Of the 20 000 German voters of Chicago, Mr Raster, another German editor, did not believe Grant could get one-half, and yet five sixths of them are republicans. The Chicago Tribune does not think Illinois can be captured for the ex-president. In that state there is no such machine despotism as in Pennsylvania and New York. In nearly all the speeches at the Chicago conference it was made manifest that there was a decided leaning towards Washburne as the candidate who could most certainly secure the undivided vote of the party.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

WESTON, March 12 1880

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

Your recent discussion of the educational problem meets with much approbation in this section. It is suggested that the following questions be sent you for information.

What is meant by "common schools?" If a district applies its public funds to the different school terms and charges the pupils tuition to pay the teacher, can it be called a "public" or "common" school? Is it not the intention that every district should teach a school free from tuition, and is it not illegal to impose a tariff? DIRECTOR.

A good deal of confusion is manifest in these questions. The definition of "common schools" should be easy enough. They are schools supported by public funds; they are schools which are open or common to all the children of the community on equal terms, and schools in which the common branches of education are taught to all alike. Every school district in the state, if it keeps up its organization according to law is entitled to its proportion of public funds and gets it. If there is not money enough to keep up the school for as long a period during each year as may be desired, then a special tax becomes necessary, or, in case such tax be not ordered, the deficit may be made up by subscriptions in proportion to the number of children sent. It is a public school so far as the public money supports it. It is not practicable for every district to keep a school "free of tuition" for the desired length of time, unless a special tax be voted. In many country districts such tax is not voted, but the public money is used as far as it will go, and after that subscriptions are paid or tuition charged neither of which is illegal.

The brief communication signed "Merchant" presents with clearness and force the needs of our commerce in regard to towage and pilotage at the mouth of the Columbia river. The state must move in this matter. Never yet have there been tugs of sufficient weight and power for this service. We agree with "Merchant" that there have been no disasters which would not have been averted under a better system. It is time for our commercial men to take the lead in preparation of a proper measure to be submitted to our legislature at its session a few months hence, for overhauling the whole system and taking proper steps to secure necessary service at this gateway of our commerce. It is becoming the one great need of the country overshadowing all others.

The San Francisco Post a journal which has always been noted as a true friend of the working classes and a consistent opponent of Chinese labor says: "If free white labor is to replace Chinese labor effectively it must organize, and guarantee employers against the misconduct of men who undertake jobs and either shirk work or get drunk. When a bargain has been made both sides should stick to it. The Chinese labor contractor always guarantees an employer against loss through the misconduct of his gang. It is incumbent on workingmen therefore, to organize a labor and intelligence bureau whereby they may be able to control these matters and so enjoy the confidence of employers."

Estimates for the San Francisco public schools for the coming year have been reduced to $[illegible]. The Call says the average attendance will be not far from [illegible]. The cost per pupil therefore will be $[illegible]. In the total of $[illegible] there is allowed the sum of $40 000 for buildings and a further sum of $30 000 for repairs. Directors of the Portland schools have estimated the cost for the coming year at $62 500. As we have [illegible] pupils the cost for each on this calculation will be $31 25. In the total of $62 500 we have $14 000 for payments on buildings and $1[illegible] for repairs.

The presidents of several railroads are among those who have petitioned congress against the reduction of the exorbitant duty on steel rails. For a time there was wonder at his action but it has since been shown in regard to the petitioners that their personal interest in the railroads they manage is very slight as compared with their interest in the manufacture that is so unjustly and extravagantly protected.

The Deutsche Zeitung, of this city, referring to the report that Washburne had announced himself for Grant says that if Washburne has really done so his declaration is to be accounted for only by the fact that he was absent from the country during the whole of Grant's scandalous administration.

A French enthusiast is quoted as writing to M de Lesseps when he was [illegible] the Suez canal which the English didn't like: "Yield not an inch to perfidious Albion. If necessary move your isthmus elsewhere. Your shareholders will follow you."

Carlyle has just completed the revision of a new and corrected edition of his works. He has also been collecting material for his biography. He is said to take a very gloomy view of the immediate future of England.

HARNESS MAKERS' STRIKE.

Thirty-one Journeymen Demanded Higher Wages Yesterday and Quit Work —A List of Prices Prepared Last Night by Employers.

All the journeyman saddlers and harness makers in this city except the employes of J. B. Congle—numbering 31 in all—quit work yesterday morning. Some time ago they formed an association, and within the last week prepared a list of prices for wages and submitted it to the various employers for their approval. The wages demanded are $3 per day, an increase of 50 cents over present pay of average workmen, and an advance of about 20 per cent on "piece" work. Three firms accepted the rates demanded, while three refused—hence the strike.

Last night a meeting of employers was held at J. Clark's, at which the following firms were represented: W. H. Watkinds, J. B. Congle, E. Sherlock, Walsh & Christensen, J. Clark and Harvey & Bennett. They agreed to pay $3 a day for first class workmen, and fixed a uniform scale of remunerative prices for "piece" work—that is, such rates as they can afford to pay, and at which men can make good wages. One prominent employer present stated that he had four men in his shop who could earn under the price list just prepared, at least $22 per week. The list of prices will be submitted to the association to-day.

The journeymen claim that the wages paid in Portland are much lower than those of other cities on the coast, but are willing to acknowledge that employers are paying as much as they can afford when the prices at which harness is sold is taken into consideration. Such has been the competition among dealers that single sets are sold in this city at a much lower price than the same quality can be bought in San Francisco by the hundred sets. Notwithstanding the advance of 4 to 5 cents per pound in leather and 50 to 100 per cent in saddlery hardware, the prices of harness are no higher than two years ago. They claim also that employers can pay the wages demanded, make a fair profit on goods and still be able to undersell all outside competitors. The employers seem to agree with the workmen in some of their views on this matter, and it is altogether likely that a scale of prices will be adopted by to-night which will be satisfactory to all concerned.

ARCHBISHOP SEGHERS' LECTURE.

In response to an invitation signed by many of our prominent citizens his grace, Archbishop Seghers delivered at New Market theater last night a lecture in aid of the Irish famine fund. The subject chosen was "The Influence of Ireland on Christian Civilization from the Fifth to the Eighth Century." The theater was crowded. Preceding the lecture was a double quartette, a march by Messrs. Van Bearden, Withington, Wyatt, Warren, Gill, Atkinson, Schuyler and Kinross, which was excellently rendered and highly appreciated.

The reverend lecturer was introduced to the audience and the object of the lecture stated in a few fitting words by his excellency Gov. Thayer.

Of the lecture, as an eloquent historical tribute to the illustrious part that Ireland has played in the civilization and enlightenment of the world too much cannot be said in praise. It is utterly impossible to give a just condensation of it. The lecturer began his subject by describing or defining Christian civilization to be a civil organization founded upon religion, morality and knowledge. Civil organizations exist without these accompaniments but they are only an illustration of what the condition of the world would be without the elevating, ennobling and refining influence of Christianity. An example of such is the Chinese empire. And the presence among us of so large a number of Chinese should serve as a warning that we must not neglect the cultivation of these necessary elements of a true civilization. The destruction of the Roman empire and the overrunning of Europe by the barbarians was detailed, and the civilization, government, customs and character of these races described; and it was the rescuing of Europe from the almost total intellectual and moral night into which it was by their conquest plunged, chiefly through the efforts of Irish missionaries that furnished the theme of this discourse. From Ireland came the first gleam of light that broke upon this reign of darkness, and it was Irishmen who carried this light into the deepest of its recesses. After detailing the intellectual and physical influence exerted by the Irish missionaries upon the barbarian nations among which they labored, the lecturer dwelt at length upon the moralizing influence of their labors. They established monasteries and convents, and by living among them, taught the practice as well as the theory of Christian virtue. They inculcated charity, they lived lives of austerity and self denial, and exhibited to the astonished barbarians the exact opposites of the character and habits borne by them.

The zealous monks at the same time imparted knowledge of the liberal arts and learning to the surrounding tribes of people. As a consequence a higher civilization began to dawn upon these races. Crime diminished and out of chaos came peace, harmony, law and order. The speaker paid high and eloquent tributes to the courage, fidelity and unswerving devotion of these early Irish apostles of civilization and concluded by a short statement of the present suffering and necessities of that generous people.

The lecture was divided into two parts. Between them Mr. Kinross sang that beautiful Irish ballad "Killarney," which awoke a responsive echo in every Irish heart as was seen by the burst of applause that greeted the completion of each verse.

At the close of the lecture the same gentlemen who rendered the opening piece sang a most beautiful double quartette, "Good Night," by Abt.

The money realized by this lecture will be sent to Ireland for the relief of those actually suffering from the present famine.

DEATH OF EDWARD CARTWRIGHT.

The many friends of Mr. Edward Cartwright in this city and elsewhere will be pained to hear of his sudden death. Mr. Cartwright died in his room over the Aurora Restaurant, corner of Front and Alder streets, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. For the past two weeks Mr. C. had been complaining and had not been well enough to leave his room. Although he had not appeared on the streets, he was able to attend to his official duties. Sunday he was very ill, but yesterday forenoon he felt much better and seemed greatly encouraged. A few minutes before 3 o'clock Mr. Cartwright complained of feeling very sick and seemed to be suffering great internal pain. There were several persons in the room at the time, including Hon. John Cartwright, his brother. With some difficulty he was assisted to the sofa. He laid down and in a few minutes quietly breathed his last.

Nearly a year ago Mr. Cartwright sustained an injury in one of his arms which necessitated the amputation of the limb near the shoulder joint. For many weeks he was confined at St. Vincent hospital, and his recovery deemed out of the question. Subsequently he recovered, but his health has been quite feeble at times ever since he left the hospital.

Several months ago Mr. Cartwright received the appointment of deputy collector of internal revenue for the district embraced by the counties lying east of the Cascades; also the counties of Columbia, Clatsop and Tillamook.

The deceased was aged about 60 years. Two brothers, John C. Cartwright of this city and C. M. Cartwright of Salem, survive. The remains will probably be taken to Salem for interment.

JOHN R. GARDINER'S DEFENSE.

John R. Gardiner, an account of whose flight was published in this paper on the 4th inst., writes to THE OREGONIAN from Walla Walla, in substance, as follows:

I hope you will correct some of the errors which crept into your report. You did not state that when I had used up my interest in the firm of Gardiner & Dorrance that I gave Mr. Dorrance a bill of sale, and Mr. D. can also tell you that an account of stock was taken about January 1, 1880, and that the books will show that I only drew out my own money and left Mr. Dorrance the same share; also an amount sufficient to pay all the debts of the firm. I deny that I took one dollar from the firm that did not belong to me, and the statement that I took advantage of Mr. Dorrance during his illness is without foundation. * * * I felt no confession of doing anybody any wrong but myself. I used only my own money, and in leaving a note to Mr. Dorrance, I did so after waiting two days for an over due steamer, and knowing that I had done no wrong to him was not, and am not now afraid to meet him.

Mr. Dorrance was interviewed by an OREGONIAN reporter yesterday afternoon, and stated that the only unexplained transactions of Gardiner were the sale of a quantity of goods for $600, entered unitemized in the cash book, "Job lot to H. A. Davis, $600, paid," and the mortgaging of the store fixtures for $300. When asked by the reporter "Did Gardiner draw any more money from the firm than his partnership entitled him to?" Mr. Dorrance declined to answer.

REASONS FOR INCREASE OF ACTIVITY.

Y. M. C. A. Anniversary Address

BY [illegible]

[illegible] we are permitted [illegible] the twelfth anniversary of this association. We congratulate ourselves upon the review of the year. The reports of the treasurer, secretary and president show a steady [illegible] this [illegible] summary is so far gratifying [illegible]

[illegible] for regret. [illegible] and we cannot shut [illegible] Our [illegible] we would gladly have done more good than we have but our failures [illegible] or lack of means or time, or support.

A review is most serviceable when we rise from it with the fixed resolution to make the future better than the past.

To be satisfied is to remain in apathetic and inglorious rest.

Not to advance is to court despondency, which invites cowardice, despair and death.

We shudder at the thought of such a fate, and resolve, with God's help, "forgetting the things which are behind, and reaching forth unto the things which are before that we will press forward to the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." We adopt with all the heart this resolution of the great man of Tarsus.

Among the motives which should stimulate us to increased activity there is not one which presses upon me more than the thought that what we have to do we should do quickly.

Do not say, I beseech you, that this is the old talk about the "brevity of time," which is a part of the preacher's stock ammunition. It is no more the preacher's than the moralist's. It is the voice of ordinary prudence—the dictate of common sense.

Recent occurrences in Portland sharpen the edge of this thought and quicken the pulse of our resolve. One after another of the Christian workers are either disabled or taken away from our fellowship. This occasions a sadness which can be overcome only by increased effort to fight the good fight and to finish our course with joy.

Another stimulus is in the thought that there is no tarrying in practical Christianity. And the only way to prevent a stoppage is to increase the speed. First get the faith of God into your heart—a sense of pardon, a humble trust, the weakness and gentleness of Christ—and then grow. Abound in love and good works. Grow in knowledge. Go from grace to grace. Go from glory to glory.

If there is one thing more plainly set forth in practical Christianity than another, it is this, that there shall be improvement on the past.

In the Scripture doctrine of the millenium I find no place for idlers any more than for liars. And I think the washing of the saints' robes is the washing them from the stains of toil as well as from the stains of sin. For christian work is often the cleansing of that which is foul and it is never sure until it is a cleansing from sin. Such work is sure progress. It is an advance toward the end in view.

In the millenial prospect which illuminates the sky of prophecy human exertion finds its highest stimulus and human progress towards perfection, its decisive vindication. That era of peace and happiness is so becoming for man, for the whole race of man, that it actually justifies all our effort in making progress towards it. It justifies also our self denial and self-renunciation, to make even a step in advance of what has been done in the past. We must advance towards a state of moral purer, of culture higher than has yet been reached.

Christianity means straightening what is crooked, widening what is narrow, and leveling up to the common platform of God's favor and man's redemption. It means progress, invention, development. We must bear this in mind, and turn our faces not to the sunset but to the dawn! The day is at hand. All prophetic possibilities are with him who grasps the present Christian activities. These are not clogs; nay, they fledge wings!

Another thought yoked in with the last.

All along with these promises and impulses of practical Christianity are the paces of God's providence; step by step they walk abreast in this world. The promises of God and the providence of God are our beacon lights. And we are paving the path for the march of future generations. We are lighting lamps along our pathway for those that come after us.

The character of the age also pushes us onward. Its course is like the train that starts from Omaha. Onward with accelerated speed it plunges, mounting the lofty summits, coursing through the tortuous valleys, along beetling precipices, until it glides down to Sierra slopes to the very margin of the Pacific sea. So modern enterprise whirls onward, its tireless wheels revolving night and day, learning no lesson from the caution which intercepts the mad speed of the railroad train to cool the heated axle. For, impatient of restraint, it must reap penalty in the fires which its own savage haste enkindles.

Accelerated motion is the order of the day. And it stirs all classes and all races, because it is the design of God that the outcome shall benefit all. Not the few shall have a surfeit and die of gout, but the many shall have plenty. Printing, schools, governments, shall spread equality. But Christianity must lead the van. These Blessings can be realized only under its influence and the followers of Christ must sow the seed, employ inventive skill and try all promising instrumentalities.

In the wonders of the nineteenth century, there is nothing more wonderful than the invention of machinery and tools to overcome mechanical difficulties. What ponderous blows the trip hammer delivers upon the glowing mass of iron to smite it into shape for the forge! What keen precision, what delicacy of touch, what exquisite finish—as in the Jacquard loom! What amazing stretch from Faraday's laboratory to the stars, dissolving their brilliant rays and weighing their masses—and Sirius seems to say, Ah, mortal, thou hast caught me! thou seemest to balance me in the palm of thy hand.

These unparalleled achievements of science and art fling the limits of discovery beyond the stars. Shall they not all be brought into the service of man? For is not one soul, however humble, worth more than all the stars?

What hints they give to sharp sighted Christians! For shall we not bring into strenuous operation our inventive skill to launch new instrumentalities upon the currents of human life to sweeten and restore it?

The Master calls for all aids for all are his. He sits behind the curtains of nature and moves her forces which are all in his grasp, or manifests himself to his servants as he did to the prophet Zechariah. As a surveyor and architect with measuring line and carpenter's tools to stake out and found the capital city, the metropolis of the new country which shall welcome the pure soul, whether it was once pressed down under a king's crown, or burdened with this world's goods, or dwelt in a tenement of want and bondage. His voice rings out over the stirring scene, "Run, speak to this young man!"

Why to a young man? Because he has great capabilities which older servants are already employing, and which the Master Builder would develope under divine intuition. In youth capacities lie dormant which may awake to lust and hate or gross sin, or polished iniquity and bear their owner on to perdition. Or, expanding upon the wide range of manly enterprise, strung by Christian magnanimity, may assist in building up the walls of the new world's capital.

Then speak to him, for you have heaven's grand message to deliver. Tell him to learn the art of the new life from the Master who waits to enroll his name among his friends and follow workmen.

Run! The order tallies with this hurrying age. The young man is here now; he may be gone to-morrow; therefore speak to him without delay.

This association takes up the word and echoes it. The Great Architect wants your help, for your sake and the world's. Withhold not thine hand. You never can work for God or country as you can to-day—in no sphere where your lot could be cast, as in this world. And here you are building up character for eternity.

Again I speak in the sadness of my heart in view of the losses which are thinning our ranks—a sadness which would be intolerable if I did not believe that recruits will be enlisted from the ranks of the young and vigorous, who, though endowed with no better intentions, shall with enlarged facilities use increasing skill along the line of existing activities, which, always aggressive, shall lead to final victory. * * *

Pray do not turn aside when I plead for your immediate attention to the subject of personal religion. If ye hear not Moses and the prophets, Christ and the apostles, hear the poet laureate of England in the "Idyls of the King." A little maid is the medium of most precious thoughts, and the words are set to a popular melody:

Late, late, so late! and dark the night and chill!
Late, late, so late! but we can enter still?
Too late, too late! ye cannot enter now.

No light had we; for that we do repent;
And learning this the bridegroom will relent.
Too late, too late! ye cannot enter now.

No light: so late! and dark and chill the night!
O let us in, that we may find the light!
Too late, too late: ye cannot enter now.

Have we not heard the bridegroom is so sweet?
O let us in, tho' late, to kiss his feet!

AUGUST FLOWER.

The immense sale and great popularity of Green's August Flower in all towns and villages in the civilized world has caused many imitators to adopt similar names, expecting to reap a harvest for themselves at the expense of the afflicted. This medicine was introduced in 1868, and for the cure of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint with their effects, such as Sour Stomach, Costiveness, Sick Stomach, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Palpitation of the Heart, vertigo, etc., etc., it never has failed to our knowledge. Three doses will relieve any case of Dyspepsia. Two million bottles sold last year. Price 75 cents. Samples 10 cents.

THE BELGIAN PAVEMENT.

Its Superiority Over All Other Kinds in Point of Cheapness, Health and Durability

FROM OUR REGULAR [illegible].

We had occasion on Friday last to refer to the disposition on the part of property owners to substitute the Belgian pavement for the Nicholson pavement on Front street. The latter method has been sufficiently tested to prove its unfitness, and the necessity for a more durable street. It has been tried for years in Portland, and any person who takes the trouble to examine the huge holes and pitfalls into which Front street has been worn in a comparatively short period, will see the folly of re-laying the same pavement. The macadam, as laid down, is but little, if any, better, and now that property owners are about to improve that thoroughfare, it would be well for them to consider the policy of providing the best, cheapest and most durable pavement. Where the several systems have been satisfactorily tested the Belgian pavement stands preeminently ahead of all other kinds, and the gentlemen interested are disposed to give it a trial. When the Nicholson is worn out the Belgian is in good condition and teams can haul fully 1000 pounds more over this pavement than the other, as the wooden blocks will spring and sink ¼ of an inch under a heavy load, whereas there is no ... to solid stone. When the Nicholson gets out of repair a whole section must be removed and new blocks put down, and then they never settle to the proper level, while with the Belgian all the expense necessary is a few shovels of sand. The blocks are taken up, a little sand put under them, they are replaced, being as good as new and the work is done. Chinese are employed on no portion of the work in preparing and putting down this famous pavement. Mr. S. S. Cook, a San Francisco gentleman, is in the city endeavoring to obtain the contract for laying the Belgian pavement and he proposes to do it better, and in a shorter time and for less money than the Nicholson pavement can be laid. The Belgian makes a solid even street that will last for a score of years without much if any repairs at all. The stone blocks are to be not less than 6 inches in length, not less than 3½ to 4½ in breadth, and not less than 6½ inches in depth, these to be laid in rows or courses at right angles with the street on a bed of sand in conformity with established grade, the interstices to be well packed with gravel. Practical men are in favor of giving the Belgian a trial. It is superior in all respects to the other pavements, and being so much more economical, we think Portland's business men will be committing a sad mistake if they fail to grasp the present opportunity. Splendid rock for the purpose may be had a short distance from town, and there are men in abundance to cut and prepare it. As the bids for the construction of the pavements will be submitted to-morrow, it behooves those interested to give the subject calm and careful consideration. The city has had enough of the Nicholson pavement.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

PORTLAND, March 15, 1880.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I feel it my duty to correct the intimation in a communication of some bad "Practice" that the proposed Nicolson pavement on Front street will be more expensive than durable, on account of the requirements of cutting the blocks from "butt-logs" and coating them with tar and pitch. Every man who has had any sensible "practice" in handling lumber knows that timber from butt ends of trees is tougher than from lengths near the top of the tree, and that the butt logs are much freer from sap and are close grained. There are so many reasons in the communication for any one to know that "Practice" is an ignoramus that I do not think it necessary to give further proof than to say who ever writes such a word as "ignoramusism" must be an ignoramus in literature, and the assertion that boiled tar and pitch have no saving qualities for dry fir wood to be exposed to the weather, is a conclusive proof that "Practice" is an ignoramus in carpentership.

If, in such communications, you would publish the real names of correspondents, no one might care to give any attention to them. The malice of the practical ignoramus would be apparent, and his lack of veracity would condemn his pretenses and assertions.

BAR PILOTAGE AND TOWAGE.

PORTLAND, March [illegible]

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

To any one interested in the shipping interests it is a notorious fact, which is being constantly increased by frequent accidents and losses, that our bar service of towage and pilotage is totally inadequate to our requirements. The loss of the [illegible], the accidents to the Eugene and Allegheny and the later [illegible] of the [illegible] are all accidents which, as is evident to any one at all acquainted with the facts, could almost certainly have been avoided by having first class powerful boats available. The pilots, as every one knows, are at present part and parcel of the tugs, and consequently are rendered much less useful than they should be. Hardly a vessel that comes here but experiences anxious days and nights, for often a week or more, beating backwards and forwards close to the buoys, incurring great danger, without any attempt being made to give them a pilot.

Already it is being found a matter of difficulty to charter vessels to come to the Columbia river, and most certainly the rate of insurance is about to be raised on Oregon business.

Is it not time then that the state be up and doing in a measure that is so palpably for the benefit of no particular individual but for all of its citizens, the most remote farmer as well as the rich shipping merchant?

A newspaper discussion can only call attention to this matter. A remedy must be found in the sober deliberation of our business men and legislators; but the people at large must show more interest before any reformation will be set about.

MERCHANT.

A MERE SUGGESTION.

EAST PORTLAND, March 15, 1880.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Without intending any breach of propriety I would like to suggest to W. A. Wheeler that, as "death loves a shining mark" and "those whom the gods love die young," the chances of mortality are so evenly balanced that it would be hardly safe for this young man to entertain any very expectations based upon his father's demise, and it would be far more seemly in him, as a dutiful son, not to administer upon his father's estate till the old gentleman dies. Also that he and his mother—even after his father's death—ought at least to wait "A little month, or ere those shoes were old, with which she followed my poor father's body, like Niobe, all tears," before they proceed to put us all out of house and home by means of that flimsy dower right which he claims. Respectfully,

CLAUDE THAYER.

PRESIDENTIAL TALK.

ANTI-THIRD TERM SENTIMENT CRYSTALIZING—THE SCRATCHERS OF NEW YORK AND PHILADELPHIA—THE EX-PRESIDENT'S EXAMPLE—OPPOSITION TO BLAINE WITHDRAWN.

[Washington special to the New York Herald.]

The attitude of the so-called young scratchers in New York is the subject of comment here among republicans. It has become known that this organization of young republicans is in communication with others in other states and that there is a probability of an organization in a number of states of republicans opposed to the third term movement, and who will refuse to vote for the ex-President if he is renominated. This anti-third term body occupies somewhat the position toward the third term movement which the Tammany democrats last summer held toward Governor Robinson. They say that they are good republicans and that they mean faithfully and earnestly to support the ticket no matter who is nominated, excepting only the ex-President. Him they will not support, but, on the contrary, they will oppose him in whatever way may seem to be the most effective to defeat him if he shall be nominated. It is understood that an anti-third term organization exists also in Philadelphia and that it is in correspondence with the New York scratchers, and that these bodies will make, in a short time, a public presentation of their views and intended policy.

A HIGH EXAMPLE.

To the charge that they are mere bolters and unworthy of consideration as republicans these anti-third-termers reply that they are only following the example, or rather the precept, of the ex-President himself, whose loyalty to the party has never been questioned. They simply refuse to support one particular candidate, and for reasons they are ready to give, and they give public notice of this beforehand, precisely as the ex-President did in 1876, according to his own account. Speaking of the canvass of 1876 the ex-President said to a Herald correspondent:—

I had only one candidate for the Presidency as my successor, and that was the republican candidate who could be elected. I took no part in the proceedings antecedent to the Convention because the candidates were my friends and any one except Mr. Bristow would have my heartiest support. Mr. Bristow I never would have supported, for reasons, but I may give at some other time in a more formal manner than mere conversation.

They are, they say, as good republicans as the ex-President. He frankly says he would have bolted the ticket had Mr. Bristow been nominated. That is all they propose to do, if the ex-President is renominated.

NO MORE OPPOSITION TO BLAINE.

Leading opponents of the third term have within a few days determined that, though they do not think Mr. Blaine an idle candidate, they will not further oppose his candidacy. The third term they regard as the chief and only real danger to the party and to the country. This is the result of consultations which have been held here within a week. It is understood that Mr. George William Curtis is in harmony with other opponents of the third term on this subject.

Hints on Smoking Meats.

The following remarks on this subject, by [illegible] Nessler, appeared in a recent number of [illegible] Agricultural Society's publications: The most important part in smoking hams, [illegible], is not the volume of smoke, but the uniform and complete drying of the flesh. In many parts of one Duchy, meat for keeping is not smoked at all, but simply hung up in a well-ventilated place, and painted over from time to time with good vinegar. Here the vinegar has the same effect as smoke, viz., it protects the meat from insects and fungi and putrefaction, till such time as it is so far dry that there is no fear of its going bad. Smoke that is too hot injures the meat, as [illegible] the deposition in it of water, or its vapor. By very warm, dry smoke the exterior of the meat is dried too quickly, and a crust forms which is liable to cracks. Moreover, the heat may melt a portion of the fat. In this case the keeping qualities, the appearance and the flavor are injuriously affected. Steam or water deposited on the surface is worse in its effects than too great a degree of heat. If the meat be hung in a [illegible] chimney, a good deal of vapor [illegible] and prevents its uniform drying. At night and at other times when there is no fire, the meat is cooled, and when the fire is relighted the burning wood and the water give off steam which is condensed on its cold surface, which is thus [illegible] and does not dry again for a considerable time. If the meat under treatment has been browned by the smoke, the moisture [illegible] a part of the smoky matter, and [illegible] in solution into the interior of the meat, so that oftentimes the meat is colored [illegible] and tainted with smoke for a depth of [illegible]. When the operation is conducted properly, only a very thin layer of the meat should be browned or taste strongly of smoke. Similarly, a bad result may be obtained by too high a heat, whereby the fat is [illegible], the smoke dissolving products and carrying these into the interior of the meat. It is a good plan to roll the meat in sawdust or bran, or sprinkle it over with one or other of them, directly it comes out of the brine, and before it is exposed to the smoke. The [illegible] of smoked substance will then be not so [illegible] and if any water settled on the surface it is confined to the sawdust or bran, and does not penetrate the meat. Such coating is easily removed when necessary.

The Two Dictators.

[From the New York World.]

Our esteemed Kentucky contemporary, the Courier-Journal, has issued in behalf of Mr. Tilden what may be called an ukase to the effect that no man be nominated at Cincinnati in June except Mr. Tilden or somebody designated by Mr. Tilden. "The state is Gramercy park." What tremendous consequences hang on Mr. Tilden's existence! Fancy it! Should he pass away before June, who can "give direction" to the democratic canvass in 1880? Upon the theory of this imperial decree, issued, so to speak, from "our palace in Louisville," what is the need of holding a democratic convention? The republicans are obeying, as we see, a similar order issued from the headquarters of General Grant. Why talk about the coming of the empire? Here on both sides of the political world we already have monarchy, pure and simple; and the electoral franchise is announced to be a sort of right to register one's name in honor of the monarch!

SUICIDE.

A distinguished Scientist once said: "No man with a strong, healthy stomach ever committed suicide, yet many suffer the torments of the damned with dyspepsia, when a single bottle of Dr. Mintie's English Dandelion Liver and Dyspepsia Pills will give relief, and, if persisted in, cure the worse case of this distressing trouble. This pill cures torpid liver, biliousness, sallow complexion, foul breath, sick headache, heartburn, pain in side and back, removes pimples from the face, regulates the bowels, is sugar-coated and guaranteed purely vegetable. It acts directly on the coating of the stomach and on the liver; is suited to any climate, wet or dry weather. Beware of imitations; genuine has [illegible] London, outside wrapper. Price, 50 cents. Sold by all druggists. Hodge, Davis & Co., Portland, wholesale agents.

How to Save Money.

Instead of going to a doctor, if you have Bright's Disease, Diabetes, pain in back and loins, smarting, inflammation, calculi, brick-dust deposit, or any trouble of the kidneys or bladder, buy a bottle of Dr. Mintie's Nephreticum, the great Buchu Compound. It is the best prescription ever compounded for these troubles. Abrams & Carroll, Wholesale Druggists, say: "We regard Nephreticum as the best Kidney and Bladder Remedy in the market." Woodward, druggist, Portland, Oregon, says: "Everybody speaks highly of it." Collins, druggist, Portland, says: "Sold lots of it; it always does the work." Many have been cured of obstinate kidney complaints after the doctors gave them up. Sold by all druggists. Price $1 00 a bottle, or six bottles for $5. Hodge, Davis & Co., Portland, Wholesale Agents.

Local business matters are moderately active, and some indications are manifest of the approaching spring trade. The monetary supply is ample to meet the legitimate demand, and rates continue steady from 10 per cent. per annum to one per cent. a month, borrowers who proffer security that will stand the usual scrutiny being able to obtain all needed accommodations without difficulty.

In trade circles there is nothing unusual to note outside of a large call for some lines of goods used in railroad building for which dealers were scarcely prepared so early in the season, though had it come a month or six weeks later it could have been met without delay. In some special articles for this trade, the market is entirely bare.

The market for domestic produce moves along in about the same channel as last week with a little more life in breadstuffs, caused by encouraging reports both from San Francisco and Europe, though New York and Chicago show no improvement. Local buyers are not doing much, the accessible surplus being very much reduced, and for that still held for sale more is asked than shippers generally see their way clear to pay. "Gilt edged," which means the very best, is quoted in the San Francisco market to day at $1 per cental, but the intimations in reports are that this is 5 cents at least above the average at that point. Buyers here for the same quality would probably offer not over $1 90, while fair to good shipping is quoted at $1 80@1 85.

Oats come forward rather slowly and prices continue steady, with some offers of an advance of ½c ale on last quotations.

Flour is supplied in ample quantity to meet the demand, which is fairly active for the local trade, but the call for export is dull, with shippers refusing to pay over $5 50 for round lots.

Potatoes still plentiful and sales difficult to make at more than 25@30c per bushel.

THE GENUINE

CELEBRATED

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

such as SPERMATORRHEA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.
